About the Role: As part of our team, you will teach the Behavioral Science course in the second year of our MD program. Faculty members benefit from a collaborative teaching environment that allows time for research and scholarly activities. The academic year consists of three semesters, with teaching responsibilities distributed throughout the year.

Key Responsibilities:

- Develop and deliver approved syllabi and learning objectives.
- Organize and update course content regularly.
- Employ diverse teaching techniques and technologies for effective lectures.
- Prepare and administer assessments.
- Provide academic support and mentorship during office hours.
- Engage in faculty committees and community service.
- Supervise students in various learning activities, including problem-based learning and local clinical settings.
- Align the Behavioral Science program with USMLE exam requirements.
- Participate in departmental activities as assigned.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Passion for teaching and student success.
- Doctoral degree (Ph.D. or PsyD) in Clinical Psychology or MD in Psychiatry.
- 3-5 years of teaching experience at an accredited medical school, preferably in the US, Canada, Puerto Rico, or the UK.
- Proficient in Microsoft Office, especially PowerPoint.
- Exceptional written and verbal communication skills in English.

Course Description: MBEH 0830 Behavioral Science (5 credits)

This course explores the relationship between psychological factors and human development. Topics include common behavioral issues, culturally competent care, recognition of psychological disturbances, and workshops on clinical problems such as sexual dysfunction and bereavement. Students will develop skills for effective interviewing and empathetic patient interaction, focusing on psychiatric disorders and psychopharmacological interventions.

Salary: This is a full-time position with a salary commensurate with experience.
