University Health Services (UHS) and primary care are integrated care environments that support a holistic approach to patient-centered care. The collaborative care model at UHS allows for a novel and innovative approach to integrated behavioral health in outpatient healthcare settings. This position provides psychiatry coverage and offers an opportunity for the incumbent to help further develop this unique integrated approach.

In order to address demand for mental health services and to serve students who would benefit from integrated care, UHS has an interprofessional team focused on improving the student experience, reaching a broader array of students, improving the quality of care, and fostering enthusiasm for this way of working together. The model optimizes the talent, expertise, training, and spirit of expanded, multidisciplinary medical and mental health teams. As a result, students experience comprehensive, seamless, timely, individualized, effective, safe and comfortable services that destigmatize mental health, address body, mind and emotions, and feel like, for those who desire it, that a team is taking care of them.
